Introduction from our Chief Executive

The Royal Melbourne Hospital is committed to promoting diversity, inclusion and equality. This is an important part of achieving our vision, advancing health for everyone every day.

At the RMH, our workplace values are People First, Lead with Kindness and Excellence Together. These values are clearly aligned with, and reflected, in our first Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Action Plan. For if we truly do seek to lead with kindness and put people first, we must commit time, energy, and resources to understanding the distinct strengths and challenges that people of all backgrounds and identities experiences in our workplace, and in the wider community. We cannot achieve excellence together if people do not have equitable opportunities to contribute, to grow, and to flourish.

We know many of the issues we seek to address are complex, and play out beyond our walls. But, as healthcare practitioners, we understand the social determinants of health, and the importance of equity in supporting wellbeing. We are committed to understanding what we can change, to build a fairer, healthier community.

This is why I am so pleased to present our first workforce Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Action Plan. The plan was developed based on an extensive audit, which helped identify strengths and areas for improvement in relation to the experiences of diversity, equity, and inclusion for those who work here at the Royal Melbourne Hospital.

This is a dynamic and iterative plan. Ongoing consultation and engagement with staff, and further data analysis will shape our work as we continue to review and refine our efforts over the life of this action plan. However the central objective will remain – to do our very best to provide a great place to work and a great place to receive care for people of all backgrounds and identities. Because we understand the impact this can have on our staff, our patients, and our community.

Professor Christine Kilpatrick AO
Chief Executive
The Royal Melbourne Hospital

Why Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion

Our Vision

Our vision is to advance health for everyone, every day. At the RMH we want to be a great place to work and receive care. We put People first and Lead with kindness by ensuring we support a diverse workforce who are safe, respected, treated with dignity and have equal opportunities to flourish. We embrace and value difference to Achieve excellence together.

The issue

Everyone deserves to feel safe, supported, and included in their communities. We all want to equal opportunities to succeed at work, to receive effective care, and live healthy lives.

Unfortunately, we know this isn't always the case. The social determinants of health are well understood, so for RMH equality and inclusion must be part of our core business. We know, for example, that some groups, in particular women and girls, Aboriginal/Torres Strait Islander people, and trans and gender diverse people are still more likely to experience harassment, discrimination and violence.

Some people also face unfair attitudes or expectations about what they can, or should, do in their work or personal time. This means they don't have equal opportunities to achieve social and economic security or maintain good health and wellbeing. For example¹:

Our commitment and response

We are committed to taking clear and meaningful steps to support better outcomes for people of all genders, backgrounds and identities. We have completed an audit of our organisation, and created this Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Action Plan to drive change. Both the audit and plan have been shared with the Public Sector Gender Equality Commission, and will be reported on accordingly.

Legislative context

The following legislation shapes our efforts:

- Gender Equality Act 2020 (Vic)
- Fair Work Act 2009 (Cth)
- Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (Vic)
- Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Vic)
- Sex Discrimination Act 1984 (Cth)
- Workplace Gender Equality Act 2012 (Cth)
- Race Discrimination Act 1975 (Cth)
- Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth)
- Privacy and Data Protection Act 2014 (Vic)

Gender Equality Principles

The Commission offers the following gender equality principles² which have informed our case for change and this action plan:

- All Victorians should live in a safe and equal society, have access to equal power, resources and opportunities and be treated with dignity, respect and fairness.
- Gender equality benefits all Victorians regardless of gender.
- Gender equality is a human right and precondition to social justice.
- Gender equality brings significant economic, social and health benefits for Victoria.
- Gender equality is a precondition for the prevention of family violence and other forms of violence against women and girls.
- Advancing gender equality is a shared responsibility across the Victorian community.
- All human beings, regardless of gender, should be free to develop their personal abilities, pursue their professional careers and make choices about their lives without being limited by gender stereotypes, gender roles or prejudices.

² <https://www.genderequalitycommission.vic.gov.au/gender-equality-action-plans>

- Gender inequality may be compounded by other forms of disadvantage or discrimination that a person may experience on the basis of Aboriginality, age, disability, ethnicity, gender identity, race, religion, sexual orientation and other attributes.
- Women have historically experienced discrimination and disadvantage on the basis of sex and gender.
- Special measures may be necessary to achieve gender equality.

Benefits of gender equality work

Mounting evidence shows that working towards gender equality, using gender equity measures, is good for businesses and communities. In our communities, gender equality helps reduce violence against women, and strengthens the economy³. In workplaces, gender equality improves organisational performance, enhances the ability of companies to attract and retain talented employees, and strengthens organisational reputation⁴.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples

RMH recognises that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples are not simply another diverse cohort. They are the First Peoples of this land, they are diverse, and they are impacted by ongoing issues of colonisation and sovereignty beyond that of other people living in Australia. We do not seek to minimise their identities or experiences by including them in this Plan. However, when focusing on equity and inclusion we cannot exclude them, and we see value in considering how their identities as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander peoples intersect with other aspects of their identity, such as gender, in shaping outcomes and experiences.

Intersectionality

Intersectionality refers to the ways in which various aspects of a person's identity can expose them to overlapping forms of discrimination and marginalisation⁵. This includes aspects like Aboriginality, gender, language, sexuality and so on. So, the experiences of an Aboriginal woman with disability may vary greatly to a trans woman, or white woman who is same-sex attracted.

Understanding these differences means we need to ensure our efforts to achieve gender equality are more inclusive.

Organisational context

Our commitment to inclusion is highlighted in the Royal Melbourne Strategic Plan Towards 2025. The strategic pillar, to 'be a great place to work and a great place to receive care' is essential to our purpose of advancing health for everyone, every day.

The RMH values of People First, Lead with Kindness and Excellence Together recognise that we embrace and value difference and respect diverse views and contributions.

The RMH Reconciliation, Disability and LGBTIQA+ action plans describe our commitment to inclusion and welcoming diversity, and the actions we have committed to in order to address barriers and increase equity for patients and staff from these important community groups.

Governance committees and working groups (each with an executive sponsor), including the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander committee, Disability Working Group, LGBTIQA Committee and Gender Equity Advisory Committee provide leadership and guidance on strategies, policies and initiatives.

The RMH Respect and Partnerships in Care and Community Advisory Committee coordinate and lead our efforts to Partner with Consumers in line with NSQHS Standard 2 and align with our commitment to equity in access to health care for our community and promoting health literacy. They emphasise that everyone at the RMH has a responsibility to partner with consumers and provide Safe, Timely, Effective and Person-centred care (STEP) in accordance with our clinical governance framework.

Roles such as our Diversity and Inclusion Advisor, Aboriginal Health Liaison Officers, Elder in Residence, Disability Liaison Officers, and LGBTIQ+ Liaison Officers provide guidance to clinicians, leaders and other staff.

Training and events are promoted to raise staff awareness of issues and build inclusive practice. These include the Aboriginal Cultural Awareness, Disability Awareness, and Trans and Gender Diverse Inclusion, as well as events to promote key dates such as International Women's Day, National Reconciliation Week and International Day of People with Disability.

Where are we now – 2021 baseline audit analysis

In mid-2021 a gender audit was conducted using payroll data as at 30 June 2021, and the results of our People Matter Survey. This survey augmented data gleaned through an earlier Diversity and Inclusion Survey to inform our Action Plan.

When analysing the audit data and areas to focus on primarily, we were conscious of our sphere of influence and the context in which we operate. For example, we are a highly feminised workforce, and this is unlikely to change from our efforts alone. That would require a concerted, collective effort with schools, TAFE's, universities and other hospitals. While this would no doubt be valuable, we decided to focus initially on issues which we could address internally.

The audit highlighted a number of strengths including:

- A positive attitude to increased efforts to raise awareness of diversity and inclusion and a desire for this work to continue to expand.
- High levels of staff satisfaction with the support received from local team and local managers and support from senior leadership.
- A positive experience of flexible working arrangements where these have been utilised.
- Work is seen to be fairly allocated by gender.
- Most Culturally and Linguistically Diverse staff have positive experiences of inclusion, support and development.
- Age does not affect staff experience of inclusion, support and development.
- Diverse sexualities generally responded in similar ways to others suggesting that overall sexuality does not affect experiences of inclusion, support and development.

The audit highlighted a number of challenges and opportunities including:

- Less positive work experience for staff who are Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander, have a disability and/or are trans or gender diverse (TGD). These staff experience higher rates of bullying, discrimination and harassment and are less likely to agree that RMH provides a positive and safe work culture than other staff.
- Opportunity to increase staff and leader awareness of the challenges faced by some members of our workforce and our build skills and confidence to address these.
- Limited formal reporting of bullying, harassment, and sexual harassment compared to the rates indicated in the PMS along with a lack of confidence in the reporting process.
- Particularly low confidence in management of reporting of bullying, harassment or discrimination by staff who identify as Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander, have a disability or are TGD.
- Opportunity to further explore gender composition and pay equity in some areas including senior leadership roles (i.e. Director level) and medical workforce.
- Inconsistencies in access to flexible work arrangements including leave and part time work, with men less likely to have part time positions, people with a disability less likely to be confident of accessing flexible work arrangements if requested, and both Aboriginal and disabled staff feeling less confident to access Family Violence leave.

- Challenges in accessing and linking workforce data regarding demographics and identity in our recruitment, payroll, leave and learning management systems. This limits our ability to audit and understand the experience of our staff and identify opportunity to improve equity and inclusion in RMH. It also limits our ability to undertake intersectional analysis of payroll data.

Employee consultation and engagement

Developing our action plan

Meaningful consultation and engagement was central to the development of this action plan. We consulted with our governing bodies, employees, employee representatives and other relevant people to develop this. Organisation wide messaging began before the audit had been completed, using our case for change as a basis to build understanding of the work, and its value.

Upon completion of the Audit, a report and slide pack which included draft actions, and an infographic were developed and shared through a range of mediums.

These were presented to a range of key governance and advisory committees and workforce groups for discussion, including:

- | | |
|--|--|
| • RMH Board | • Manager forum |
| • RMH Executive | • Safety Champion forum |
| • Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Governance Group | • People and Culture team |
| • LGBTIQ+ working group | • Steering Committee for The Melbourne Way |
| • RMH Clinical Operations Committee | • Nursing Executive / NUM Forum |
| • Gender Equity Advisory Committee | • Head of Unit Meeting |
| • Union representatives | • Finance and Logistics Leadership Team |
| • All staff CEO forums | • NWMH Safety Committee |
| | • Various leadership meetings |

Staff were also invited to a series of drop-in sessions, and could also provide feedback via an anonymous online platform, or by direct communication with the lead worker. All staff emails, the intranet and our internal social media platform were used to promote the work and opportunities to contribute.

Implementing our Action Plan

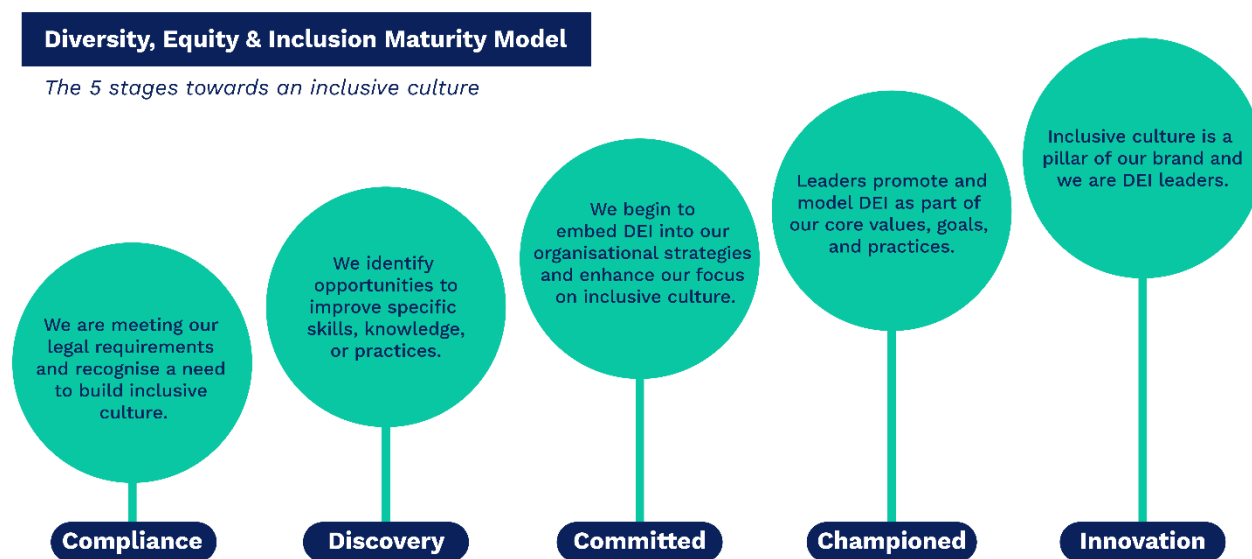

Creating significant organisational and cultural change requires ongoing engagement and support across RMH. The following will underscore our work:

- We will work within existing structures to ensure change is embedded sustainably.
- We will elevate the voices of those affected by the work, staff voice will be critical in designing and implementing actions.
- We will champion the role of equity measures in achieving equality.
- We will consider gender as one of many facets of identity that should be considered when seeking an equitable workplace.

Our Change Journey

At the RMH we understand that change is a journey. The maturity model below offers a visual conceptualisation of that journey. In some areas of our work we are further along the journey than others.

To be effective we must design our activities in accordance with maturity levels, creating strong foundations for ongoing change. Much of our work in the first years of this Action Plan will be partnering across RMH to better understand the current context and identify next steps.

Based on Maturity Model from Veza Global.

Accountability, Governance, and Resourcing

Executive sponsors, who have each endorsed this Plan, are allocated to each action to ensure high-level accountability for meeting our commitments including adequate resource allocation.

Biannual progress reports will be provided to the Melbourne Way Steering Committee and the Executive.

An annual report will be provided to the People, Culture, and Remuneration Board Committee.

Strategies and Measures

The four year Action Plan is a living document and will be reviewed and refreshed in line with findings from future audits, and ongoing staff engagement.
